for other purposes.[85] Sec. 1, p. 79—25 U. S. C. 278, (39 St. 988, sec. 21). USCA Historical Note. A proviso following the derivative provision in sec. 1, 30 St. 62, which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to make contracts with schools of various denominations for the education of Indian pupils during the fiscal year 1898, but only at places where nonsectarian schools could not be provided, was omitted as temporary merely. A provision of Act June 29, 1888, s. 10, 25 Stat. 239, that at certain schools, at which "church organizations are assisting in the educational work, the Christian Bible may be taught in the native language of the Indians," etc., may be regarded as superseded by a provision that the Government should, as early as practicable, make provision for the education of Indian children in Government schools, made by Act Mar. 2, 1895, s. 1, 28 St. 904, and by said derivative provisions. Similar provisions to the Code section were made by the Indian appropriation act of June 10, 1896, sec. 1, 29 Stat. 345. Sec. 1, p. 83—25 U. S. C. 274. (See 25 U. S. C. 472) Sec. 1, p. 90—25 U. S. C. 58 (sec. 10, 37 St. 88; sec. 1, 37 St. 521; sec. 17, 40 St. 578; 45 St. 1307). See Historical Note 25 U. S. C. A. 58. Sec. 1, p. 90—25 U. S. C. 184. USCA Historical Note: The derivative section used the word "heretofore" instead of the words of the Code section "prior to June 7, 1897." Sec. 1, p. 90—25 U. S. C. 197 (32 St. 404, sec. 4). USCA Historical Note: Sec. 1, 30 St. 90 originally provided with reference to the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota, that the Secretary of the Interior might authorize them to "fell, cut, remove, sell or otherwise dispose of the dead timber, etc., and the amendment by said sec. 4 of 32 St. 404, consisted in repealing so much of the quoted phrase as authorized the sale of dead timber, standing or fallen under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. USCA Pocket Supplement: 25 U. S. C. 197 was repealed except as to then existing contracts by 32 St. 404. Sec. 11—25 USCA 135 Historical Note: A provision made by Act June 7, 1897, sec. 11, 30 St. 93, "That hereafter, where funds appropriated in specific terms for particular object are not sufficient for the object named, any other appropriation, general in its terms, which otherwise would be available may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be used to accomplish the object for which the specific appropriation was made," was repealed by Act Mar. 3, 1911, sec. 1, 36 St. 1062.
